Washington, Oct. 23.-Admissions of defects in the indictment of James Patten, Eugene Scales, Frank B. Hayne and William P. Brown, on charges of conspiracy to run a $10,000,000 corner in cotton in 1910 on the New York Cotton Exchange, in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, were made in the Supreme Court of the United States to-day by Solicitor General Bullitt for the government. The occasion was the second argument over the indictment, the court not being willing to decide last spring the correctness of the decision of the New York federal court in quashing several vital counts in the indictment The new Solicitor General had barely stated to the court that the question in the case was the decision of the lower court that the Sherman anti-trust law did not prohibit the "running of a corner," before Chief Justice White suggested that he would be pleased to have the government at some time define just what it meant by a "corner."

Mr. Bullitt replied it was a combination among dealers in a commodity or outside capitalists for the purpose of buying up the greater portion of the commodity and holding it back from sale until the deto advance the price abnormally. "Now, I want you to show how the in-nounce that he abandoned the third count of the indictment, because the lower that the defendants were to hold back the cotton from sale, and consequently no "corner" charged. "Getting right down to brass tacks," declared Mr. Bullitt, "I frankly admit one defect. There is no express statement in it that the combination was created to withhold from the market the cotton Justice Van Devanter suggested that the man who drafted the indictment did not have that in mind, perhaps, for immediately after the word "corner" he had defined the term without including a charge of withholding from sale. Finally Mr. Buillitt admitted that if neither of these arguments was acceptable the government had no case. Ex-Senator John C. Spooner will be heard to-morrow for the defence.

Commerce Commission Revises Decision on Export Freights. Washington, Oct. 23.-The Interstate Commerce Commission issued supplemental findings to-day in what is known as "differential case," affecting the allrall and lake-and-rall freight rates on all shipments to New York, Baltimore and Philadelphia intended for export.

The commission explains that it had no flour or on iron and steel articles for export. In the supplemental opinion, the commission so amends its previous findings as to prescribe definitely that the differentials to Baltimore and Philadelphia under the New York rates shall not State Can't Drop Case, Though be greater than they now are.

The Mayor has sent the following fetch to Corporation Counsel Watson:

October 23, 1912.

Sir: It has been called to my attention that "The Evening Post" published a statement in answer to my letter to you in which it is said that they did not put out a Sunday edition on October 9, 1910, in order to publish the election notices. I am inclosing to you a copy of "The Evening Post" with the heading "The Evening Post, Sunday, October 18, 1910, "containing the said election notices. So that it is an undentable fact that they "wrinted" such an edition. That they did not "publish" it is what I stated. It bever went outside of their own office. I also send you a similar pretended edition of "The Post" dated Sunday, October 18, 1910. That edition was also "printed," but what I said of it was that it was not "published," namely, it was not delivered to the newsdealers, it was not circulated, in fact, it did not leave the office of "The Evening Post," unless a very few copies were sent out in order to make a pretence of publication in arder to collect of the city the $17.090 for $abc, publication of election notices. I do not wish to say anything annoving to any one, but it is my duty to call your attention to this fraud, and direct you to bring a suit to collect back the money. A demand has been made on me by a tax-payer that I do this, and it is my dis-astreable duty to do it. Very truly yours, W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

Light on Organization.

Failure to Charge Withholding Neither William Hamilton nor W. C. Lane Able to Recall

> Important Details. Witnesses called by the government's legal representatives in the third hearing of the government suit yesterday to dissolve the so-called Harvester trust failed to assist much in the effort to show that temporary employes, incidental to putting the organizers of the International Harvester Company, George W. Perkins, Charles Deering and Cyrus H. McCorthe details of organization.

Inability to remember important facts as to the early transactions of the company on the part of its incorporators P. Grosvenor, Special Assistant Attorney leneral, who represented the government before Robert S. Taylor, special examiner. William Hamilton, son-in-law of J. lerpont Morgan, and member of the firm Lane, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company, were two of the important witnesses called.

Lane, who was the first witness, testi fied that he was a banker and had never engaged in the manufacture of harvesting machinery, but that in 1902 he had entered into a contract to purchase severa harvester companies. These he testified he did not buy for his own use, but to transfer to a corporation. He declared mand so far outran the limited supply as that he could not remember his reason for participating in the purchase of the properties, but said he had done so on dictment fits that definition?" said the the advice of counsel, some member of the firm of Guthrie, Cravath & Hender-

The Assistant Attorney General then introduced an agreement dated August 13, sourt found there was no charge in it 1902, between Lane and J. P. Morgan & Co. pertaining to the purchase of the concerns by the banking firm. This agree ment the witness admitted. Efforts were made to have the witness acknowledge that he had acted as a "dummy" in the that the other count, the seventh, has transaction, but he asserted he had been an agent without initiative powers.

A letter dated August 14, 1912, from Mr Lane to J. P. Morgan & Co. inclosing a check for over $3,000,000 as payment for money advanced by the company to Lane was produced. The witness could not remember what money this check represented or where the money had come

On calling Mr. Hamilton, efforts were made by Mr. Grosvenor to show connection between the Morgan company, the purchase of the harvester companies and transfer of the stock to the new corporation. A memorandum was produced by ing to fight the flames after they had Mr. Hamilton showing that 165,000 shares of stock in the International Harvester Company, worth on August 14, 1902, $13 .-500,600, had been paid to William C. Lane.

It is hoped by the prosecution that it an prove the stock was transferred to the Morgan company. Mr. Hamilton declared that he had no personal hand in the organization of the International Harvester Company, but that George W. Perkins, a member of the firm, had been its agent.

The taking of testimony will be continued to-day, when the Assistant Attorney General will attempt to learn further deintention to change the differentials on tails of the International Harvester Com-

Shourds, who is accused of appropriating the money and securities, must be prosecuted, notwithstanding that restitution has been made to the trust company, which is now known as the

Merchants' Union Trust Company. The decision of the Governor was made after he had conferred with the Attorney General, John C. Bell; the District Attorney, Samuel P. Rotan, of Philadelphia: William H. Smith, State Banking Commissioner; Clarence L. Harper, of the trust company; George Burnham, jr., and

Edwin O. Leads, an attorney. The securities, it is said, were taken from a safe deposit box rented by Mr. Burnham. Shourds is a fugitive from justice, but it is said that in view of restitution having been made the trust company would not press the prosecution. A state law, however, demands that the commonwealth prosecute all such cases, and it is expected that the District Attorney, if Shourds is found, will bring him to trial, as he has already been indicted. Shourds, who was superintendent of deposit vaults of the trust company, left the country not long before the crime was discovered. It is reported that he opened communication for the return of Mr. Whitridge told the grievance delegathe securities and the money through "personals" inserted in New York, Philadelphia and Paris newspapers.

No Disorder at Little Falls.

Little Falls, N. Y., Oct. 23.—There was no disorder in the strike at the knitting mills of the city to-day. The strikers men, Commissioner Waldo relieved from say they have gained many recruits and skilled labor in the mills has refused to join in the strike.

This afternoon Industrial Workers of the World organizers formed an organization of the strikers and appointed committees to carry on the strike. Just before the mills closed for the day the committee filed demands with the managers. The strikers insist on the same pay for fifty-four hours a week as they received for sixty hours a week and an increase of 10 per cent for the day hands and 15 per cent for the night hands.

The strikers held two meetings in Clinton Park, the place the Schenectady Socialists brought into prominence when they were arrested for trying to ad-dress the strikers. There was no police interference to-day.

STRIKERS MAKE DEMANDS ASYLUM INMATE AT LARGE Miss Agnes Clowes Again Escapes from Bloomingdale.

Miss Agnes Clowes, forty-five years old, escaped from Bloomingdale Asylum Tuesday night for the second time within five months and is still at large. She is the daughter of Frederick L. Clowes, of Garden City, Long Island, and was committed to the institution about five years ago on account of homicidal mania.

It is believed she reached the street through crawling through a small hall window. She was not missed until the morning, and the asylum officials informed Sheriff Doyle after exhausting their resources in looking for her.

Miss Clowes was found in a vacant house about half a mile from the asylum three days after her first escape on May 31, and was taken back none the worse for her experience, nor had any harm been done by her, though great fears were entertained generally when it was learned that she was at large.

Garden City, Long Island, Oct. 23 .-Frederick L. Clowes said to-night that he had been informed by the Bloomingdale Asylum authorities of the escape of his daughter, but he said he had neither seen her or heard from her. He added that he believed she had merely wandered away and would return to the institution in a day or so of her own free will.

No such sales book is kept by these men, according to the ommissioners.

After going into details concerning the three places visited by them, the commissioners' report says:

"We were enabled to get the correct names and addresses of all of the confedrates engaged in this mock auction busi ness, together with the proprietors, and all of these were examined under oath and were compelled to admit the characer and methods of the business they were engaged in."

It is also alleged that the auctioneersthere are usually three in each placechange places on the auction block every hour, but that only one auctioneer name appears on the auctioneer's flag outside the shop. It is extremely difficult to get evidence against such places, the commissioners report, because persona who have been defrauded in this manner do not like the facts to become public.
